DJH Engineering was asked to complete an environmental review of the Luiz Dairy. The dairy will soon be demolished and the land converted to a residential subdivision. Several reports were prepared previously by DJH Engineering and others. One of two dairy waste ponds has been cleaned up and the manure applied to surrounding lands at agronomic rates. One pond remains until the last of the herd is taken away.

There appears to be no remaining issues.

During the recent site review, the water heater was checked for asbestos and none found. The dairy pond cleanup was satisfactorily completed.

There are no remaining environmental issues other than the last pond cleanup and the building demolition.
